They Find Out

you will probably want to settle down and do some real saving, to make up for the hole made in the old bank account by all the new spring clothes that had to be bought.

STAY-SLIM
The New Way to Slenderness

The "Stay-Slim," our new creation, was designed to aid women who seek the smart, fashionable silhouette. True to its name, the "Stay-Slim" enables you to become slim and to remain slim. It is a rubber corset, obtainable in two models, a Step-In or a Claspon—either one a perfect reducing corset.

If you find yourself getting just a bit too stout—buy a "Stay-Slim"—you will find it invaluable! It is the safe and scientific method of quickly reducing the parts of the body where excess flesh has gathered.

You wear the "Stay-Slim" whenever convenient. Perhaps while taking your "daily dozen"; while on the golf links or the tennis courts; while taking long tramps.

The "Stay-Slim" is made of rubber, chemically treated till it is acid-proof, and reinforced where necessary. It is worn over an undergarment. It removes without any effort or discomfort, the fatty tissues that by former methods it took months of unpleasant diet and strenuous exercise or injurious drugs to rid oneself of.

Your Excess Flesh Rolls Away as If by Magic!

Violent exertion is neither necessary nor desirable for the woman leading a less athletic life. The "Stay-Slim" induces a similar perspiration and consequent reduction of excess fat takes place in a manner that causes you no discomfort whatsoever.

The "Stay-Slim" does its work efficiently and well—from the beginning and continues to do its work.—It is the perfect rubber corset!

The Busy Nuisance

Every community has him, and some have two or more. Englewood knows some, and takes the philosophical way of dealing with him. He is always leading some new project, it doesn't matter much what kind of a project, just so it is new, strange or startling, and can put him in the limelight in a cheap way, and give him mention in the newspapers. He is great at raising funds and often goes so far as to promise to pay something himself, but his chiefest delight is to get the other fellow to pay. He loves to get up a subscription list as much as a church deacon does to pass the plate on Sunday. He is fine on raising funds (from others) and it does not matter much what the funds are for, to relieve the suffering Irish in Berlin or the Jews in Dublin, all are the same, just so he may shove a typewritten headed paper under your nose and ask you "How much?" He gets into organizations and works "the brothers" to a fatal finish if they will stand for it; he annoys his acquaintances, and even the stranger within our gates, with his everlasting subscription lists, and confidentially (?) informs you how stingy such and such a fellow is, and how easy another may be worked. Scarce is one fund ended before another is begun, and the endless chain is his delight. You may not feel inclined to contribute to every cause, no matter how meritorious it may be, or you may be a newspaper man and too poor to do so, but this has no standing with the peripetetic subscription circulator, and he reaches an acme of happiness, surely not equaled by anyone but the fellow who at the final judgment is told off with the sheep, and not the goats, when he may stand on the public platform and hear his work commended by the chairman of the fund that has "gone over the top." It may be that such people are necessary, but we do wish they were less frequent.

What Are the Poor Kiddies to Do?

Here comes an order from the police ordering the bicycle riders to keep off the sidewalks, and another cautioning them of the danger of riding on the streets and pavements. As the city has not built elevated tracks for them, and it seems impossible to climb the telephone poles with their bikes, what are the kiddies to do?

What Becomes of It?

We read in the city papers of the raiding of moonshine stills and learn that fifty gallons of "booze" has been seized, yet when the case comes to trial the prosecution can only produce less than a gallon. Is it possible that the volatile stuff evaporates, or is it absorbed in the handling?

Attention to Ladies

Your hair bobbed or shingled in the latest style by efficient barbers. B. J. Webb, 324 W. 63rd st., phone Englewood 8841. 5-2-24

We Can't Understand Why?

As it is against the law to carry or have in one's possession fire arms, the papers are allowed to advertise revolvers and "automatics," at bargain prices, even exploiting their powers to kill. As the Volstead law forbids making of beers, a thousand or more department and special stores advertise and keep on sale malt, hops, extracts and even offer sure fire directions how to brew the decoction. Why a man or woman who will not take the trouble to register or vote will lament and groan over the result of a primary or election in which they might have taken part and changed the result. Why a man will be loud in condemnation of a jury that acquits a criminal of the charge of theft, or even murder when the evidence of guilt seems conclusive, will use all of his influence and even lie to the Judge to be excused from jury service. Why a man will spend an hour discussing the laziness and negligence of his neighbor and leave his own property and business to run itself. Why a merchant will refuse to join in the efforts of his neighbor to improve the neighborhood, but at the same time take advantage of every effort his more patriotic neighbors take to "boost" business for local concerns. Why a man will "strike for" and do all he can to increase his own wage, yet kick strongly at paying men in other occupations a full wage when the work is being done for himself. Why a merchant will complain of the "high prices" other lines of business are selling for, yet keep his own prices up to the highest notch.

Keep Your Name Off of Charity Lists

The wise man makes his donations anonymously when contributing to any of the many worthy causes, and in a measure may thereafter select what he desires to contribute to. But should he once sign his name and address to a list, he is the victim to be harried and hunted by every charity solicitor for every cause under the sun, and some in the moon. The general public may not realize that the raising of funds for different objects, many of which are deserving, has become a profession and professional solicitors will assume charge of a campaign upon a percentage basis, running all the way from ten to fifty per cent. A certain hospital project contracted to pay one-third and expenses and were guaranteed $200,000. The solicitors demanded an office and publicity which cost the organizers over $10,000 and the solicitors got pledges for less than $10,000, and the hospital was not built. There is not a business man in the town, and there are many private individuals who receive by mail and personal solicitations not less than a dozen a day, and they may date their troubles to the time they allowed their names to go on a public list.

Anticipation of Your Desire

To serve only when and how requested is but to half serve. True service lies in doing that which should be done before the wish is fully formed. But it takes years of service and careful observation and study before this can be done.

Anticipatory service is one of the features of our work: we have learned this delicate art during the many years it has been our privilege to serve.

Our Weekly Poem

WAITING

Serene, I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, nor tide, nor sea;
I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
For lo! my own shall come to me.
I stay my haste, I make delays,
For what avails this eager pace?
I stand amid th' eternal ways,
And what is mine shall know my face.
Asleep, awake by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me;
No wind can drive my bark astray,
Nor change the tide of destiny.
What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming years;
My heart shall reap where it hath sown,
And garner up its fruit of tears.
The waters know their own and draw
The brook that springs in yonder heights;
So flows the good with equal law
Unto the soul of pure delights.
The stars come nightly in the sky.
The tidal wave comes to the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me.
—John Burroughs.

BOOSTS THE "GOLDEN STATE"

Report of Director of Agriculture of California Cannot Be Otherwise Than Encouraging.

In his annual report, Director of Agriculture G. H. Hecke states that the value of the farm crops of the state in 1922 was $397,820,000. The production of the year was the greatest in the history of the state, but, of course, values do not equal that of a somewhat smaller tonnage at peak war prices. The values given are farm values. With all the development of our fruit industries, the value of field crops has hitherto exceeded that of our orchards and vineyards, but in 1922 our fruit crops brought $104,816,000, as against $186,722,000 for field crops. This was due largely to increased fruit acreage coming into bearing, but fruit prices were relatively better, than prices of field crops. A large crop of wine grapes at $75 to $100 a ton helped a lot. Concurrently with the report of the director covering last year's output, the crop-reporting service states that the outlook for the current year is excellent.

Director Hecke states that California is now experiencing the most rapid agricultural development in our history. Not only is cultivated acreage increasing, but better and more intensive farming is getting better yields. Also more people are arriving to help till the soil. During the last two or three years we have frequently had occasion to say that California was the most prosperous spot in the world. That situation still continues.—San Francisco Chronicle.

SOUNDED FAMILIAR TO HER

It was while attending college that I met a young man who was a veritable Hercules. Then, too, he was a westerner and affected a broad sombrero in which he was especially noticeable. Indeed, many fair young coeds wore their handsomest smiles when he passed, which I had occasion to notice on my frequent walks with him. Naturally I felt singularly blessed in receiving his undivided attention and was soon hopelessly in love. I had reason to feel my affections were returned.

One week-end I went to visit a former classmate who was teaching in a nearby town. While there I received a letter from my admirer. It was a thriller and I wanted to share it with my friend, so I read parts of it. Suddenly I noticed she was laughing. I asked what she thought so amusing.

"I thought you were reading one of my old sweetheart's letters, for it sounds just like 'Dan.'"

"Dan who?" I asked.

"Why, Dan West. There aren't two of him."

Men are deceivers ever.—Detroit Free Press.

Oh, Dear, How Cynical.

"Speaking about witty definitions," writes Miss K. C., "let me offer this one: A bachelor is a man who lives alone with the one he loves."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Be Glad for the Fields.

Be thankful to the fields, though summer's sweets lie dead. It was their fleece that clothed you; their green blades brought you bread.—Frank L. Stanton.

Self-Denial Above Everything.

The worst education which teaches self-denial is better than the best which teaches everything else and not that.—John Sterling.

True Philanthropy.

This is true philanthropy, that buries not its gold in ostentatious charity, but builds its hospital in the human heart.

Thunderstorm's Approach.

When the approaching thunderstorm is within hearing, its distance away, in miles, is very nearly the number of seconds between the lightning flash and its subsequent thunder, divided by five.

Altruria Girls' Banquet

A very pretty and enjoyable banquet was held on Monday evening, April 28, by the Altruria Girls' club of the Normal Park Baptist church. Since the club is supporting a kindergarten in Japan, it arranged all its decoration and appointments in a "Japanese" style. The tasty decorations, the Japanese paper caps, the balloons, and favors all combined to make a picturesque spread. Toasts were given on the subjects, "The Past, Present and Future of the Altruria Club," by Maude Gordon, Ruth Baker, and Bessie Weber. Mrs. Holman and Mrs. McGorrill each gave charming vocal selections, and Lois Bliss entertained with a piano solo.

The officers for the ensuing year were installed, and are: President, Marjorie Edwards; vice president, Evelyn Bliss; corresponding secretary, Nina Harlow; recording secretary, Dorothy Lockhart, and treasurer, Mildred Bliss. To each of the ladies who served the dinner, a corsage of sweet peas was given.

To Avoid Confusion in Reaching Englewood Times

As there are three other papers published from the same office as the Englewood Times, there has been some confusion as to which paper the sender desired their article or advertisement to appear in. Our telephones are the same, Englewood 1400, and those desiring to reach us should specifically state the Englewood Times. The Economist, Auburn Park Booster and Merchants Telegram are published by Foster & McDonell, and are all free distribution papers, and in no way connected with the Englewood Times, hence, matter intended for our paper should be sent to the Englewood Times.

Pat had gone back home to Ireland, and was telling about New York.

"Have they such tall buildings in America as they say, Pat?" asked the parish priest.

"Tall buildings, ye ask, sur?" replied Pat. "Faith, sur, the last one I worked on we had to lay on our stomachs to let the moon pass."

"Plan Today's Highways for Tomorrow" Should Be Slogan

Traffic congestion in large cities brings forth many unusual and ingenious remedies. Baltimore, like Boston, is considering the three-day-a-week idea, by which cars with even license numbers can park downtown on even dates and those with odd numbers can use the downtown streets on odd dates. San Francisco is considering the erection of a skyscraper garage for all-day parking, to relieve the congestion of downtown streets.

Most cities which have experimented with the restricted parking idea have found it more or less of a failure. A town which has ten thousand automobiles parked in its business district, enacts a "one-hour" parking law. If the law is observed, ten thousand cars are moved from one place to another every hour. But they are not removed from the restricted area, only shifted around in it. Merchants who have been most heartily in favor of restricted parking, claiming that cars parked in front of the places of business keep away shoppers, are in many localities reversing themselves, finding that restricted parking keeps shoppers away from their localities and results in decentralized shopping districts.

The parking and traffic problem of the cities, now in an acute stage, is to some extent a forerunner of the traffic and parking problem of the highway as it will be in the future. Well traveled main roads are now demonstrated in many cases to be far too narrow. Many main arteries of travel between large cities are now being widened at a great expense, which could largely have been saved had plans been made ten years ago for such widening. New roads are wisely built when plans for expansion are made at the time of building.

Death of Richard J. Hogan

The many Englewood friends of Richard J. (Dick) Hogan were shocked to learn of his death early Monday morning at his home, 7126 Princeton ave. His funeral occurred Wednesday morning from St. Bernard's church, and the remains were taken to Joliet where they were interred in the family cemetery lot. Mr. Hogan was born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., seventy-three years ago, and while an infant was brought by his parents to Ottawa, Ill., where the family were among the most substantial, and his father enlisted in the U. S. Army, serving through the war of the rebellion. "Dick" came to Chicago in 1872, and served thirty-four years in the police department, a greater part of the time as a detective sergeant, and retired six years ago. He had been a member of St. Bernard's parish since its foundation and was prominent in the "Big Brother" movement of the Holy Name society. He was also a charter member of Lincoln Council of the Royal League. In his police duties he was the confidential adviser of the different courts and performed good work in rescuing first offenders from lives of crime. He had made more friends than any member of the police force in Englewood, and enjoyed the confidence, respect and esteem of the entire community. He leaves besides his beloved wife Mary J., nee Doyle, his son Thomas M., and daughter Mrs. Marion E. Anderson, who with their families are well known residents of Englewood.

To Save Is to Have
Suppose you save 25 cents a day. That does not mean much to the average man. You won't miss it.
Yet that 25 cents a day in ten years grows to nearly a thousand dollars. And the interest, which we pay you for saving your money, brings the total to well over eleven hundred dollars.
Think of what you can do with this.
Realize Your Dreams
Just a few years of small but steady savings will bring you many of the things you are longing for. Perhaps you want a car. Perhaps you want to buy the farm next to you. Perhaps you want to start a son in business, or to go traveling, or to educate yourself or your children.
Saving will do all these. And best of all, you will have formed the saving habit and will never be one of the nine men out of every ten who pass their last years penniless—in the poorhouse or dependent on others.

GRANDDAD OF ALL ROACHES

Insect Believed to Have Entered Safe Seventy-Five Years Ago Still Is in Existence.

Atchison probably has the oldest cockroach in the world, says the Globe of that city. In the office of Jim Byram and John Robbins is an iron safe that was opened the other day for the first time in 20 years. On that safe is a lock that had not been taken apart since 1849, the year the safe was manufactured. And yet when Robbins and Byram took that lock apart the other day they found in it a huge cockroach which seemed to be dead, but revived within a few minutes and is now as pert as a flapper. There was no way for the cockroach to get into that lock after the lock was put together in 1849. You may doubt that a cockroad can live 74 years, but your doubt is not answering the question. How did that cockroach get into that lock after the lock was put together in 1849? Prof. Charles Kennedy says it doesn't seem possible that a roach could live to be seventy-four years old, and yet he is not taking a positive stand in the matter, and says his great-grandfather had a cockroach that was sixty-two years old when a big-footed woman stepped on it.

Popular Romance of Banking

The History and Functions of Money, and the Development of Banking, Written in Plain Language So That It May Be Easily Understood.

Chapter IV.

Before the Revolutionary war entirely disrupted the relations of the colonists with the mother country banks had fallen into great popular disfavor. As has been said, this was largely because the function of a bank was but dimly understood. It was only after repeated disastrous experiments that the people learned that neither a person, a bank nor a government can make a piece of paper worth anything by merely printing words and figures on it, except it represents something of known value, which value can and will be paid to the holder on demand in specie. The confusion was made worse by the intriguing of politicians, who were always ready to favor their friends and themselves by issues of fictitious values, leaving the last holders, and eventually the taxpayers, to bear the losses.

Robert Morris' Contribution.

But there were, here and there among the colonies, men who had a masterful grasp of the science and finance, and who had vision to see what a really strong bank would mean for the people. Among them was Robert Morris, who lent such powerful financial aid throughout the Revolution, and without whose backing Washington might have lacked men and supplies when they were essential to victory. Despite the losses and suffering brought upon the people by the mismanaged ventures of the early financiers, Morris had a clear conception of what a bank could and should do, and was on the point of establishing one when the war began in 1775. In Cary's debates he is quoted as saying, in a speech before the Pennsylvania assembly in 1786:

"Though the government had no idea of a bank, the commercial men of the province had, and I, as a merchant, laid the foundation for one and established a credit in Europe for the purpose. From the execution of this design I was prevented only by the Revolution."

It was most unfortunate for the colonists that he was thus prevented, for without doubt a strong bank, conducted on safe lines which Morris so well understood, would have been a much greater help than the personal efforts of such men acting as citizens only. Congress had no established agencies, with credit abroad, through which it might negotiate foreign loans or other transactions.

Influence of Women.

Affairs grew so dark for the colonists that in 1780 there was a great popular movement in Philadelphia to undertake some of the work which a bank could have done. The ladies of the city gave the enterprise its first impulse by raising among themselves some $300,000 in paper currency to pay the soldiers and buy supplies.

This enterprise on the part of the ladies stirred the men to effort, and at a meeting on June 17, 1780, it was proposed to form an organization and raise 300,000 pounds, Pennsylvania currency, in real money, and furnish supplies and food to the army. The plan caught the popular fancy, and within a few days 92 persons had subscribed the entire amount.

They organized themselves into what they called "The Bank of Pennsylvania," though it was not at all a bank in the real meaning of the term. Robert Morris said so, and he was not only a keen financier, but one of the subscribers, so that he knew. He said:

"It was, in fact, nothing more than a patriotic subscription of continental money, for the purpose of purchasing provisions for a starving army."

Other noted men who subscribed were Tom Paine, who gave $500, and Blair McClenachan, who equalled Morris' donation of 200 pounds.

Alexander Hamilton, who, along with some peculiar views on banking, was a keen financier, said that the "Bank of Pennsylvania" was "not an institution, but only a particular subscription for a particular purpose."

The money subscribed was never loaned, but was all collected and spent for the one purpose. It was never even subject to check. So that, while the organizers called it a "bank," it was nothing like a real bank. It never was expected that the institution would carry on its business, and in fact it accomplished its mission, wound up its affairs and closed its books in about a year and a half, and went out of existence in 1784.

Colonial Experiments.

These experiments of the colonists, with their many disasters and their few successes, had prepared the minds of the men with a real grasp of financial affairs for the establishment of a real bank, which should carry on the purposes of a bank and not become a mere printing establishment for paper money. At the time the Bank of Pennsylvania passed out of existence there was not, in the entire thirteen colonies, a bank in operation. But the time was ripe. And while the so-called Bank of Pennsylvania was still carrying on its collection of funds and buying of provisions, the first bank, which still maintains its corporate existence under the original charter—the Bank of North America, at Philadelphia—was organized.

So far from considering the new bank a rival, the promoters of the Bank of Pennsylvania welcomed the real bank, and assisted in establishing it. Robert Morris was one of its strongest sponsors, and it seems to have been recognized by the leading financiers as something the colonies needed if they were to carry on the struggle for independence.

Congress approved the formation of the bank in May, 1781. The members of the Bank of Pennsylvania and nine others formed the corporation of the Bank of North America on November 1, 1781, and it was opened for business January 7, 1782.

From the beginning, the Bank of North America was conducted along legitimate banking lines. It discounted the notes of individuals of financial standing and collected the notes when due. It had the support of the government and this gave the people confidence in it. The colonial government borrowed from France the sum of $462,862 and deposited it in the bank, and this gave it great prestige. So well did its promoters understand the real functions of a bank that in 1784 and 1785 it earned 14 per cent.

The bank officers were not satisfied to go along simply under a national charter, which they foresaw might at some time be revoked under some political upheaval, but asked a state charter also. So, three months after it had opened for business under a national charter, it was granted a charter by Pennsylvania—March 26, 1782.

Repealed in 1785.

This state charter was repealed in 1785 because the directors of the bank stood in the way of the issue of a vast amount of paper money which politicians desired. But when their influence had passed away the directors again applied to the assembly for a state charter, and received one on February 2, 1786. This charter was renewed by the state in 1787 for a period of 14 years, providing for a capital of $2,000,000. From time to time the charter was renewed in later years until, upon the National Bank Act, the old Bank of North America became a national bank on December 3, 1864. By special courtesy of Hugh McCulloch, then comptroller of the currency, the bank was not required to change its name and insert the word "national" when it became a national bank, so that to this day it retains the name and claims to operate under the perpetual charter granted it by congress.

It has not been without its mistakes. One of these was in its early years, when a rival bank was being planned, the directors over-extended the bank's business in an effort to defeat the new bank. Its reputation suffered, temporarily, and this was taken advantage of by politicians, who secured a repeal of its state charter. But wise counsels prevailed, its paper was taken up, and it resumed the safe highway of conservative banking methods.

The Bank of North America was the pioneer bank, it was quickly followed by other powerful financial institutions which operated along similar safe lines. One of these was the Bank of Massachusetts. Alexander Hamilton drew up the constitution of this bank, and it, too, did its work well. He provided that its accounts should be limited to thirty days, that no discounts should ever be allowed to pay a former one, and that bank notes or specie only should be accepted in payment.

This bank had such strong backing and was so well organized, that it opened its doors for business even before the state had granted its charter. But the charter was forthcoming on February 7, 1784. It was the second bank in the United States, and the first in the state. The capital was $500,000, of which $253,500 had been paid in when it began business. The charter said nothing about the issue of notes, but the directors looked on this as one of the legitimate functions of a bank, and issued them in denominations ranging from $1.50 to $40.

A Hundred Years of Success.

The safe and conservative lines on which this bank was operated are witnessed by the fact that in the first hundred years of its operation it passed but three dividends, and these were later voted and paid as merely earned.

Other banks were chartered by the state, until in 1790 there were five in operation in Massachusetts.

In the other states banking followed much the same line. The Bank of Maryland was chartered by the assembly in 1790, and the Bank of Alexandria was chartered by Virginia in 1792.

What They All Think.

Twenty-five members made up the party which gathered on April 25 to listen to Mr. Carl Roden, librarian, explain the work and uses of the only city library in the United States which is supported wholly by taxation. 9,900,000 books are circulated annually from the main building and 58 branches. On an average day, 6,000 readers enter the doors of the downtown building alone. So overcrowded are the facilities that the library does not dare to advertise, because it cannot take care of additional patrons or extend its lines of work, until more space, staff and funds are available.

Englewood is fortunate in having one of the five branches, housed in a library building. The Hiram Kelly commemorates the only gift ever made by a citizen to the library. After the talk by Mr. Roden, the party was taken on a tour of the building by Miss Whitcomb, formerly in charge of the Hiram Kelly Branch. They saw the Hughes Room for Children, the Art Room with its treasures in rare books and pictures, the beautiful decorations and busy desks of the circulating room, the special books for the blind, the newspaper room with its packed crowd of men, reading the news from the old home town. They visited the rooms devoted to documents, magazines, reference books, card catalogues, and the special study room set apart for women. Every room was crowded, though when the library was built 27 years ago, on what was then considered an out of the way corner, it was thought that ample room had been provided to last for generations.

Mr. Roden explained the need of an increase in the tax rate from 8 mills to 10 mills to provide a fund for building purposes. Until this increase is made, the Chicago Public Library cannot serve all the patrons who desire and need its services. After their trip, the members of the Reading Circle are ready to work for the increase, realizing the need and the value of the library.

Some one had asked the often propounded question: "Why does a woman get off a street car backwards?" and Casey answered it with, "Will, Oi suppose she wants to say whare she's goin' to fall."

City Should Pave 63rd St. West to Argo

One of the greatest necessities in local transportation at present is a direct outlet to the west from the central part of Englewood, and the most feasible route is that of 63rd st. At present it is necessary to go west to Woodrow Wilson rd. (Western ave.) and south to 95th st. to get as far west as Keane ave. to reach the well-paved roads to Joliet and the south. Some slight effort has been made to induce the county commissioners to take up this matter, and with such a good scout on the board as Dan Ryan, there should be little trouble in securing this extension. Let all the organizations join in the effort and the work is done.

Mailing "Copy" Too Late

Every week we receive considerable "copy" too late for publication, and much of it is of such a nature that it would be useless for the following week, hence it must be consigned to the fatal waste paper basket. It always pains us to do this, as our friends have taken the time and trouble to write the "copy," and it would be most welcome to us, had it reached us in time to be used. We specially ask that all "copy" be mailed at least by Wednesday if publication is desired in that week's issue.

U. S. Army Boys' Camp

Plans are under way to make this coming summer the greatest in the six-year history of Camp Roosevelt, the Chicago board of education—U. S. Army boys' camp, located at Silver Lake, near LaPorte, Indiana. Applications from boys all over the country are daily pouring into the office of Major F. L. Beals, supervisor of physical and military training in the Chicago high schools, and superintendent of the camp.

Camp Roosevelt was founded in 1919 by a group of public-spirited Chicago business men, working with Major Beals to provide a place where boys could get together for a few weeks each summer for development of their minds and bodies, under trained boy builders. This group, known as the Camp Roosevelt association, makes the camp possible at a minimum cost to each boy.

Athletics under college trained coaches, military training under army experts, grammar and high school study, if desired, under a selected faculty, and life in the open under the sun and stars, feature the camp season, which operates from June 30 to August 16.

Records of hundreds of boys who have passed through Roosevelt courses are kept at the camp headquarters, 460 South State st., and the progress of each is watched in his struggle through life, which is made lighter as a result of his Roosevelt training.

Federal-Aid Roads Avoid Deadly Intersection When Possible

As a forerunner to the policy of the National Government when it shall begin to build and maintain a system of national highways, the Federal-Aid act, as administered by the Bureau of Public roads, is being made the vehicle for the elimination of grade crossings wherever possible.

Wherever elimination is not possible, certain restrictions and rules are provided designed to increase safety at danger points. Among these is the provision that the road at the crossing will be wide enough for two vehicles to pass when automobiles approaching from opposite directions meet at a crossing.

The view at a railroad crossing should, when possible, be unobstructed for 1,000 feet in each direction along the tracks; the approaching motorist should have this view for 300 feet before reaching the crossing. Highways at a railroad crossing should be as nearly level as possible, since a steep grade up to a crossing increases the chances of a motor stalling on the track. Highways should cross railroads at right angles, not on a diagonal line, which keeps the vehicle in the line of danger longer than one which runs straight across.

The Clod-Hopper Comedy

Taxes Must Come Down

Senator Smoot is authority for the pleasing statement that there will be a tax reduction bill put through.

The American people have not weakened on the plan to cut $300,000,000 from the federal tax bill.

The people see in it the first step in a program to preserve the prosperity of the United States.

Both national and state tax problems stand as a disturbing menace to future growth and progress.

The combined earnings of this nation amount to fifty-eight billion dollars and out of that the public pays more than seven billion dollars taxes.

The yearly tax bill of seven billion dollars is a menace to prosperity and increases the living costs.

The farmer, the workman, the clerk and the mechanic are beginning to understand that taxes play an important part in the high cost of living.

Experience shows that reduction of taxes represents insurance against unemployment and lessens the possibility of a slowing down of industry.

Fifth Wedding Anniversary Party

On last Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. Stillwell of Marquette rd. and Carpenter st. celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary. Thirty friends participated in games, music, dancing and a splendid midnight luncheon. Many beautiful presents were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Stillwell by friends present and other well wishers who were not able to personally enjoy the occasion.

"The Virginian" at E. A. R. Theatre

One of the best stories that Owen Whister ever wrote was this play of the big wide spaces in the western plains. It's dramatization was a success but not nearly so much so as the picturization that you may see at the E. A. R. theatre today and tomorrow, Friday and Saturday afternoon and night. The cast is one of unusual excellence. Kenneth Harlan plays the stalwart hero, but Pat O'Malley does not succeed in making himself as weak a villain as the book intends. Florence Vidor is very good in her part as the pretty little eastern school m'am, and surely does show a cunning knowledge of love-making to captivate the big plainsman. It is a rattling good play and story and one cannot afford to miss it, especially when shown at the popular prices ruling at the E. A. R.

An added attraction is the newest things in motion pictures, "Plastigrams," which is the first evidence of the third dimension in photography. They stand out as if they were moving toward you from the screen, and approach so closely you feel like shaking hands with them. The management will furnish you colored glasses to view them properly. On Friday night they also show the Fox News and on Saturday, Fun from the Press and Aesop's Fables. Saturday matinee, the latest episode in "Leather Stockings," the great Indian classic.

V. F. W. Veterans News

Greater Chicago Post No. 866, V. F. W., of Englewood, will hold the season's biggest get-together meeting and a class of twelve new members or more will be given the post's new ritualistic work.

The Cook County Council officers and staff will be in Englewood at that time to further the cause of the post membership. Quota for Englewood is 500 by July 30.

Post No. 866, V. F. W., will participate as usual with the G. A. R. memorial association of Cook county. All deceased veterans of Englewood lying in our cemeteries will have their graves taken care of. Flowers will be furnished by local school children.

The V. F. W. post of this district will furnish speakers to speak in schools to inculcate patriotism.

A firing squad on request will be furnished to fire a volley over all veterans graves and the V. F. W. ritualistic workers will prevail on Memorial day.

The post bunco party of April 22 was a success and a vote of thanks is extended to all who contributed.

Commander Wingerning wants to meet all over-seas vets on May 13, Carpenters' hall, 6414 S. Halsted st., to see if we have missed any in our work.

Salvation Army Activities

An interesting schedule of meetings, social functions, etc., is being arranged by Field Major Staiger for the month of May at the Salvation Army temple, 64th st. and Emerald ave. The first in order will be Sunday night, May 4, when old comrades and friends will have an opportunity of renewing acquaintances with Ensign Harry Butler, who was stationed at the temple corps about four years ago. The ensign will have charge of the meeting on that date.

The next meeting will probably be of interest to even a larger number of Englewood citizens. Have you a radio? If so, you have probably listened in when the Salvation Army Territorial Staff band was giving one of its famous concerts and broadcasting it from one of Chicago's numerous broadcasting stations. Well, this band will visit Englewood and give a concert at the temple on Friday, May 7, 8 p. m. Tickets 25 cents. Proceeds for local work.

Other items of interest include Mother's day meetings, conducted by Staff Captain Victor Lundgren, Young People's secretary for the Chicago and Northern Illinois division; the commissioning of the local officers of the corps for the coming year by Brigadier W. G. Anderson, Thursday, May 15, also a visit from Colonel A. A. Chandler and the cadets from the Salvation Training college, 700 Brompton ave., Sunday, May 18. The usual Sunday and week night meetings will of course also be held.

Congress Loafing on the Job

Believing that we send our congressmen and senators to Washington to legislate for the general good of the people and for the country at large, it can truly be said of our Washington legislators that they are loafing on the job, as far as the people are concerned, and doing no good for the country. Over half of each house is employed in fruitless investigations, that reach no place and accomplish nothing. The entire membership seem working for their own particular schemes, and "blocs" of politicians, regardless of the needs of the people at large. An amusing feature is to see the pathetic efforts of the congress to relieve the pressing needs of the poor farmer, yet the "poor farmer" goes on buying expensive automobiles, and sends his sons and daughters to expensive colleges, and seems to be living on the fat of the land. Strange no one seems worried about the needs of the poor city man, be he laborer or tradesman or small merchant. Maybe this may be explained by the fact that they fear the farmer vote, which is pretty well organized, while the average city man is not. It has been asked to set a minimum price for which the farmer may sell his wheat, but no minimum price is set for what a city man may be compelled to work, or for which the merchant may sell his merchandise. If a compulsory high price is set for the farmer's wheat, the city laborer and workingmen in all lines must pay the increased price of flour, which would be unjust discrimination against the consumer. Class legislation is bad business but may be good politics. The entire session has been wasted in attempts to enact a bonus law and an income tax reduction, and they are still squabbling over both. Get down to business, gentlemen, and quit loafing on the job.

"Scaramouche" at the Stratford Next Week

Englewood theatre goers have a treat in store next week at the beautiful Stratford, when Sabatini's greatest play, "Scaramouche" will run all week. It is the story of the French revolution with a beautiful love scheme intertwining those sanguinary days. Director Ingram has surpassed his wonderful "Four Horsemen of the Apoclaypse," and the scenery and dressings are the most beautiful and elaborate ever seen in movie work.

Rebellion, with the roar of an uncaged lion, suddenly spreads terror through the gory streets of Paris. A seething mass of maddened rabble, blood-thirsting hordes, surge through the city, destroying, plundering, murder-bent. Never have such terrific mob scenes been staged, with thousands of people in a gripping climax that stirs the spectator to the depths, tears him with emotion. Andre-Louis snatches his sweetheart and his mother from the eager, clutching hands of the crazed mob, while the Marquis, who he learns, is bound to him by the closest bonds of flesh and blood, is sacrificed to the terrifying vengeance of the rabble.

SULLIVAN'S SENSE AND NONSENSE

DO YOU KNOW 'ER?

There was a young lady named Maude,
A very deceptive young fraud;
She never was able
To eat at the table,
But out on picnics—Oh, Lawd!

The mantle of charity is soon worn threadbare by the hypocrite.

Truth is mighty, but a good deal of it is supressed.

More men would marry for love if they could afford it.

It must have been a fallen angel who makes some of the angel food cake.

It is easier for a woman to conceal her love than to hide her indifference.

A pessimist is generally a man who looks at his neighbors through smoked glasses.

"Ut goes agin' the grain to sittle down whin ye're sowin' yer woild oats," says Casey.

A small boy soon discovers that coasting down the hill is all right in its way, but has its drawbacks.

If you want to be really happy, don't purchase today and read the bargain advertisements tomorrow.

When the bull and the bear go to market, there is sure to be something doing at the mutton market. Catch?

They heard a great noise in the bathroom and Casey remarked: "Thot musth bay the crash towel fallin' down."

A Blue Island man was bitten by a mule with fatal results, which goes to prove that a mule is dangerous from both ends.

Many people who do not believe in the efficacy of prayer, because they get what they deserve instead of what they pray for.

"Sum min hov no business tact," says Casey. "Now thare wor Bob Hocking tryin' to sell a safety razor to a colored man gom' to a picnic."

Casey told me he lost his dog, and I suggested that he put an advertisement in the Times, when he said, "Shure thot would do no good, the dag can't rade."

Casey was telling me of a horse that fell into a sewer on Ashland ave. "They couldn't git him out, ond to save his loife, they hed to shoot him," he said.

Moriarity meeting Casey, asked: "Whot would yez do, Casey, if Oi called ye a lour?" "Oh, Oi dunno," sid Casey. "Boot Oi suppose Oi'd hov to mention it to the coroner at the inquist."

"Some say you can't get free professional advice."

"Can you?"

"To be sure you can. Your doctor will talk law as long as you will listen and your lawyer will give you medical advice on any ailment you want to bring up for discussion."

"My father must have been a bad boy."

"Why?"

"Because he knows exactly what questions to ask when he wants to know what I've been doing."

A bashful young fellow who wants to know, you know, writes this paper if it would be proper to kiss a girl he goes out walking with? In the absence of Laery Lean Jibby who runs that department, I will volunteer to say that I would have to see the girl first before I would take it upon myself to answer.

A motor cyclist was riding up 63rd st. yesterday when his hat blew off, and Casey ran out in the street, picked it up and returned it to the rider. The young chap simply said: "I must get a piece of string to keep it on," and started off without thanking Casey, who looked after him and shouted, "Say, you, ye'd betther git a nail and nail it on to yer wooden head."

"Why, Norah," said her mistress, "how nice you look in your new dress and hat. I hope you will meet all your friends this afternoon so that they may see you in your fine clothes."

"Me friends, mum?" returned Norah. "What'll I be wantin' to see them for? Sure, I don't care to make me friends jealous. It's me enemies I want to meet when I'm all dressed up."

Master Walter, aged 5, had eaten the soft portions of his toast at breakfast, and piled the crusts on his plate.

"When I was a little boy," remarked his father, who sat opposite him, "I always ate the crusts of my toast."

"Did you like them?" inquired his offspring, cheerfully.

"Yes," replied the parent.

"You may have these," said Master Walter, pushing his plate across the table.

The young man had boasted that he had an ancestor who was killed in the Revolutionary war, and the young maid, not to be outdone, said: "How sad, and I, too, had an uncle killed in the war of the rebellion. He was only a private, so he hadn't any record, as it was his first engagement." "Was he shot?" asked the fond youth. "No, not exactly," said the maid. "The wasn't shot down; he fell and broke his neck as he was running downhill getting away."

Secretary Mellon recently announced that something must be done to stabilize the world's currency. Apropos of his statement he went on: "A man glided down 5th avenue the other day in a marvelous gray racing car with a shining aluminum bonnet. He drew up in front of a friend who said, "By Jove! What a beautiful car! High-powered, too, I bet!" "Ninety horse power," said the owner. "Where did you get her?" "Austria," was the reply. "How much?" "Eight cents."

Woman's City Club, 17th Ward Branch

The regular monthly meeting took place April 24, 1924, at the home of Mrs. C. G. Kindred, 324 Normal pkwy. Mrs. W. S. Bassett, chairman, presided. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. J. A. Jacobs; vice pres., Mrs. C. B. Hopkins; secretary, Mrs. E. F. Taylor; treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Guertner; chairman of publicity, Mrs. P. F. Collings.

The speakers for the afternoon were: Mrs. Jean Cross Weiss, secretary of the ward branches of the Woman's City club; Mrs. Williams, chairman of the Garden committee of the Englewood Womans' club, and Mrs. Fiske, chairman of the Anti-Saloon league.

Mrs. Weiss invited the 17th Ward branch to attend the reception at the Woman's City club, 1710 Stevens building, May 26, at 3 p. m., where the president, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, will read her annual message. The club, including all branches, has a membership of nearly five thousand, and the annual reception affords an opportunity for members to become acquainted. Owing to the reception, there will be no meeting in the ward during the month of May. The meeting for June will be announced later.

To Welcome Chicago's First Cardinal

On Sunday, May 11th, Chicago generally will welcome home Cardinal George Mundelein, who was elevated to that exalted position in his church two weeks ago in Rome. A welcoming committee will go to New York to meet him and accompany him home. The train will be stopped at Garfield blvd. (55th st.) about 3 P. M. and the Cardinal and his party will be taken in automobiles through the boulevards to Holy Name cathedral at State and Superior sts. on the north side. Many of the Englewood congregations will take part in the reception and the parochial school children as well as Knights of Columbus and other societies of the churches will parade and give the Cardinal a warm welcome. Fathers Ryan of St. Bernard's, Monsignor Kelly of St. Anne's, O'Shea of Our Lady of Solace, Bennett of St. Basil's, will go to New York on the reception committee.

Late Recognition for War Service

Men who spent long sleepless hours during the war on local and district draft boards and adjutants general of the various states who prepared National Guard division for military service would finally have their services recognized by the Federal government under a bill introduced here today by Representative at Large Henry R. Rathbone of Illinois, which provides that all former draft board members, all state adjutants general and all disbursing officers who were entrusted with U. S. property shall be placed on the U. S. Army records for the World War.

Members of local and district draft boards, medical and legal advisory boards and government appeals agents would not be listed as World War officers, but would receive suitable testimonials of appreciation from the federal government.

"Woodrow Wilson Road" Succeeds Western Ave.

A posthumus compliment was paid the late war president by the city council this week when they voted to change the name of the longest thoroughfare in the city of Chicago, if not in the world, from its former name Western ave. to Woodrow Wilson rd. The soldiers and sailors of the world's war who acknowledged the late President Wilson as their commander-in-chief through those parlous days, feel honored in the honoring of their "comrade," and the people generally will appreciate the naming of so important a highway after so distinguished a man. It is fitting to add Wilson's name to those of Lincoln and Roosevelt, and the selection is a good one.

Englewood Kiwanians Don the "Breeks"

It was a jolly crowd that partook of the Kiwanian luncheon Tuesday noon, and a score of guests enjoyed the good times with them. "Bill" McDonnell was in the chair and seconded the leader in singing his favorite hymn, "Old MacDonald's Farm." For the ninth consecutive time the attendance was 100 per cent and counting the guests would have been 120.

Governor Dan Stanley Wentworth was a guest of honor but fluked on leading the singing, as he had broken his voice in falling from grace. Ray Ballantine led in singing and hustled away in time to save his life.

The feature of the day came after the introduction of Kiwanian Jamie Heron, the Scotch humorist and author of "The Measure of a Man." He started the fun by getting everyone to everse their coats and tie the sleeves about their waists and roll up their trousers, giving them the appearance of regulation Highlanders with "breeks." In this condition Jamie led the singing and got the audience in fine fettle for the excellent talk that followed. Quotations from his own volume, with the philosophy and dry wit and humor of a true poet, he led them on with many interruptions of applause and laughter. It was a treat to hear Jamie and it is a sermon to hear his talks and very apt stories. We hope he will come again soon.

Special measures will be taken to bring out 100 per cent at the tenth and last contest meeting, and may the good Lord protect the fellow who slips up on his attendance. Be on hand early and enjoy the fun.

Oakhaven Now Houses 40 Old People

At last the "haven" has been put in Oakhaven, and a double score of good old souls have found peace, rest, comfort and quiet in the beautiful home and surroundings out on Woodrow Wilson rd. (Western ave.) at 113th pl. Miss Catherine Bass has been installed as superintendent, John VanCleef is engineer of the building, and with a cook and dining room girl the staff is complete. It would seem futile to attempt to thank all of the good people who deserve credit for this splendid work of giving Englewood and this southern part of the city a home for the aged, but to Dr. Rufus A. White, Mrs. H. A. Morgan and Mrs. Susan Woodman special mention is deserved, as it has been their very life for months and years, and they are to be congratulated upon the happy culmination of their good work. Long live Oakhaven and its efficient management.

Brave Dick MacLeod

Dick MacLeod, a member of the King's club of Englewood, showed his mettle last Monday afternoon, when he made a dramatic stop of a runaway horse between 64th and 65th on Harvard avenue.

The horse had started at 63rd st., where the driver had left it while delivering some parcels, and was rapidly bearing down on a group of small children playing in the street at 65th st.

MacLeod saw the danger, and catching hold of the tail-gate of the swaying wagon, pulled himself up to where he could grasp the reins, and after a short struggle, brought the excited animal to a stop. It was a feat of no mean proportions and required a co-ordination of quick thinking, nerve, and action.

MacLeod is one of the Englewood High school's greatest athletes, having taken a prominent part on the basketball and baseball teams for the past six years.

Hospital Day at St. Bernard's

May 12th, hospital day, will be observed with appropriate exercises in all hospitals throughout the country.

St. Bernard's Hotel Dieu, 6337 Harvard ave., will hold their commencement exercises on that day, and the hospital will throw open its doors to the public. A cordial invitation is extended to its many friends in Englewood and vicinity to visit its various departments and become better acquainted with the work the sisters are doing.

Y. M. C. A. News

A little naked negro boy stood alone on the edge of the Wabash avenue "Y" swimming pool. The crowd were yelling at him. "Dive! Dive!" As he looked down into the pool, he shivered. It looked to him like a leap from the Wrigley tower. He rolled his big eyes upward and cried out piteously. "'Spose I sinks!"

"Keep up your nerve. I'm here. I'll help you!" came the reassuring voice of H. R. Crawford, the big friendly physical director.

A little brown body leaped through the air into the water. Splash! He came up and swam to the end of the pool for the first time in his life. He had mastered his fear. George Washington White could dive and swim. A new world of pleasure and safety had opened up for him.

This week (April 28-May 3) the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A. is teaching 348 boys in three free lessons to swim the length of the sixty foot tank. First came the dry land drill, then the practice in the shallow end, then the swimming. Eight other departments of the "Y" are teaching 6,500 more boys.

This is the annual campaign during moving week, which is also school vacation, to teach Chicago boys to swim.

Military Training Camp

Nearly seventy percent of the places available in the Cinizens' Military Training camp at Camp Custer next August have been applied for by young men from the states of Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan, comprising the Sixth Army Corps Area. According to latest figures from Headquarters more than 2900 applications have been received so far.

Not more than four thousand men can be taken care of at the camp this summer so that those who wish to take the course at the camp should get their applications in early as the rule is "first come, first served."

"The training camp idea has been given a tremendous impetus throughout the country," said Colonel Noble Brandon Judah, civilian aide to the Secretary of War for the Sixth Army Corps Area. "It took some time for the public to get a thorough understanding of the aims and objects of this training. People now see that the object of the camps is to provide the finest training, physical and mental, for the young men of the country during their summer vacations and as a result the camps will be filled to the limit this summer.

"The military features are those best adapted to help develop the physical ability of the young men as well as teach them how best to protect themselves should they ever be called upon to go to the defense of the country. In addition, the social and educational features of the camps are on an exceptionally high plane and no young American who has a chance to go to one of these camps should fail to take advantage of the opportunity."

Some of the Symptoms of Eye Trouble

Eye trouble does not always mean poor eyesight. On the contrary, some of the most serious troubles occur in cases where the sight is exceedingly keen. Some of the most common indications of latent or hidden defects are:

Distressing Headaches.
Sharp Pains in the eye ball.
Dull Pains at the base of the brain.
A pressure at the top of the head.
The eyes smart and burn.
Subject to dizzy spells.
Bright light causes squinting or frowning.
Eyes water or lids droop.
Become nervous when doing close work.
See double or incline head to one side.
Eyes feel tired and the lids heavy.

When the trouble is caused by changing vision due to advancing age the symptoms are usually as follows:

Type blurs when reading fine print.
A tendency to hold reading matter further from the eyes than formerly.
An inclination to avoid close work or continuous reading resulting in decreased efficiency.
